SNACC is Moving Forward in 2012

Ansgar M. Brambrink, MD, PhD
President

Dear Members:

The management transition is now complete and the new office is actively evaluating and developing our new progressive routines. Some new membership services have been established, including online dues payment. If you have not done so, please take a moment and go to www.snacc.org and click the dues payment button on the left side. If you have any questions, please contact our new Association Manager Sandra Peterson at snacc@snacc.org or call her at 804-565-6360.

I am excited to inform you the Dr. Reza Gorji (SUNY Upstate) has accepted the role as the new Editor for the SNACC Newsletter. Dr. Gorji will be supported by Dr. Fenghua Li (SUNY Upstate) as the Assistant Editor and by the members of the SNACC Communications Committee under the leadership of Dr. Marc Bloom (NYU). We are looking forward to exciting new issues of the SNACC Newsletter incorporating fresh ideas and attracting a large readership in the field. Please join me in congratulating them regarding their new appointments.

The Education Committee is in the process of preparing new educational material that soon will be released on the SNACC website. Please check regularly at www.snacc.org and the ‘Education/Research’ for updates.

Together with the Ruggles office staff, SNACC’s leadership is working diligently to prepare for the 40th Annual Meeting of our Society on October, 11-12, 2012. What can you do to make this a successful meeting? Save the date and plan on attending the meeting in Washington, DC. where we will be celebrating our 40th successful year and a curting edge society. Please do join us at the Thursday evening Dinner Symposium, as this will be a very special occasion full of surprises related to SNACC’s 40th anniversary.

Over one hundred scientific abstracts from around the world have been submitted this year for potential presentation at the annual meeting. The review and selection process of this large volume of original work has begun among both national and international experts in the field and recognized as SNACC’s Scientific Affairs Committee, which is coordinated by Dr. Deborah Culley (Harvard Medical School) and Dr. Jeff Pasternak (Mayo Clinic, Rochester). It is expected that some of the best and most interesting research currently conducted in the field of neuroscience in anesthesiology and critical care will be presented during our two poster sessions at the annual meeting. The abstract submission also provided another opportunity for eligible trainees and junior faculty to enter their research for the prestigious SNACC John D. Michenfelder New Investigator Award, which is presented annually and honors research that exemplifies the Society’s mission of improving the art and science of the care of the neurologically impaired patient in anesthesia and critical care. The recipient of this award is chosen by the SNACC Scientific Affairs Committee based on the submission of a full-length original manuscript which the applicants are currently preparing. The final awardee will receive a plaque of recognition and the opportunity to make an oral presentation at the SNACC Annual Meeting.

In addition, there are multiple highlights in our exciting 2012 Annual Meeting program that I would like to briefly draw your attention to:

The educational activities will start on Thursday afternoon with new, as well as established, workshops on ‘Transcranial Doppler Ultrasonography,’ spearheaded by Dr. Deepak Sharma (University of Washington), ‘Neurophysiologic Monitoring,’ presided by Dr. Antoun Koht and Dr. Tod Sloan (Northwestern University) and a ‘How to Write a Paper Workshop’ led by Dr. Deborah Culley (Harvard Medical School). For the first time, we will also offer Problem Based Learning Discussions on three highly relevant topics, ‘Management of ICP in the Context of ARDS in a Pediatric Patient,’ ‘Reversal of Anticoagulation in Patients Presenting with Acute Subdural Hematoma’ and ‘Brain Code’ and ‘Assessment and Management of a Patient with Blown Pupils in the PACU.’
SNACC’s traditional Thursday Evening Dinner Symposium, organized this year by Dr. Deborah Culley (Harvard Medical School) will be dedicated to the 40th anniversary celebration. Two speakers from very different backgrounds will review the past 40 years, and lay out the potential for a bright future of our organization. A special session to ‘Honor the Past Presidents of the Society’ will follow and we hope that you will join us for a celebratory party during the remainder of the evening.

On Friday, the 40th Anniversary Annual Meeting will continue with an outstanding scientific program that has been organized with the leadership of Dr. Kristin Engelhard (Johannes Gutenberg-University, Mainz, Germany), Vice-President for Education and Scientific Affairs. A series of presentations will address key issues in neuroanesthesia and neurocritical care, including ‘Clinical Outcomes,’ ‘Brain-Heart-Lung Cross-Talk,’ ‘Common Data Element Program’ and ‘Quality and Safety.’ For the first time, special guests of SNACC will reflect on their personal experience with neuroanesthesia and neurocritical care from the patient perspective. Two 90-minute poster sessions, respected for their quality and depth in previous years, will bring together more than 100 researchers from all over the world to present and discuss their most recent original work that is focused on the neurosciences in anesthesia and critical care.

As every year, Friday will also feature the SNACC Annual Business Luncheon and Award Presentations, and the day will provide ample opportunities to visit with exhibitors, network with colleagues and discuss new ideas. This year, we will be electing one new Director-at-Large and the Secretary/Treasurer. Please consider standing for these important positions and keep an eye on the website and regular eblasts where the call for nominations will be announced. The Annual Meeting will conclude with the traditional Wine and Cheese Reception in the early evening where everyone will mingle and celebrate our success over the last 40 years. At the Wine and Cheese Reception, we will provide an opportunity for the members to inaugurate Special Interest Groups that will focus on promoting particular topics in our field. Please stay tuned for an update on this new initiative.

SNACC’s last Annual Meeting in Chicago was rated highly and we will work hard to exceed this success during the upcoming meeting. Please consider joining us for our celebrations and use this exciting opportunity to engage in academic pursuits while also having fun, meeting old friends and making new ones.

For more detailed information about SNACC’s 40th Anniversary Annual Meeting and our organization and its activities, please refer to the constantly updated SNACC website at www.snacc.org.

In its 40th year, SNACC is an exciting, active organization, which is committed to ensuring a vibrant future in these challenging times. Consider joining us in our mission as we move into with our future.

I am sure that this year’s Annual Meeting will be memorable and worthwhile attending. We would love to see you in Washington, DC on October 11-12, 2012. Please, start making your travel arrangements and check at www.snacc.org for more details. Let’s celebrate SNACC’s 40th anniversary together!

I look forward seeing you in Washington, DC.
40th Anniversary of SNACC!

W. Andrew Kofke, MD, MBA, FCCM
University of Pennsylvania
Philadelphia, PA

Advisor: Sulpicio G. Soriano, MD
Advising Past President SNACC
Harvard Medical School

It’s been 40 years since the first annual meeting of SNACC. All SNACC members should consider attending this year’s anniversary meeting. It will be a celebration of these 40 years. Lots of things are going on for our birthday party.

1. The 40th Anniversary Web Page

Reza Gorji, MD has been contributing his expertise to create a web page within the SNACC website structure especially designed to help us celebrate the 40th. Interesting items that can be found there include many historical documents and old newsletters. Maurice Albin’s SNACC history article on the occasion of the 25th anniversary, Elizabeth Frost’s treatise on the history of Neuroanesthesia from Albin’s textbook, Michenfelder’s landmark Rovenstine lecture on professional respect, Hartung’s article outlining the relationship between SNACC and JNA, and Bill Young’s article on the occasion of his excellence in research award. Also this is the entry port for your SNACC story. What’s that? Read on…

2. SNACC Stories

Tell us your story. How did you end up in neuroanesthesia? Did someone influence you? If so, how? How did you find out about and decided to join SNACC? Has your SNACC membership been a useful thing to you? We hope to create a collection of stories for all SNACC members for both current and historical interest. Go to the 40th anniversary web page for upload instructions or email it to snaccstories@gorji.com. Any questions or comments can be directed to Sol Soriano at Sulpicio.Soriano@childrens.harvard.edu.

3. Thursday, October 11, 2012 Evening Dinner Symposium

Plan to attend the dinner symposium the Thursday before the SNACC meeting. This will be a historic overview of SNACC and its past milestones. The agenda is going to be:

5:00 - 6:00 pm      Champagne Reception
6:00 - 6:10 pm     Welcome Address
   Ansgar M. Brambrink, MD, PhD
6:10 - 7:00 pm     The Past 40 Years of SNACC
   James E. Cottrell, MD
   What Should Happen in the Next 40 Years?
   William L. Lanier, Jr., MD
7:00 - 8:00 pm      Dinner
8:00 - 8:45 pm     Honor the Past Presidents of SNACC
   Monica S. Vavilala, MD
   Deborah J. Culley, MD

If you want to receive the SNACC thumb drive and other memorabilia of the 40th anniversary, please register today and join the celebration!

Visit www.snacc.org for more information
4. JNA articles

Coinciding with the 40th anniversary, JNA will be publishing three articles of historical significance. W. Andrew Kofke, MD, MBA, FCCM has an article detailing the 40 year history of SNACC, William L. Lanier, Jr., MD outlines the history of neuroanesthesia, and Jeffrey J. Pasternak, MD and William L. Lanier, Jr., MD are summarizing major scientific accomplishments in neuroanesthesia over the past forty years. Here are some interesting facts from these articles:

- The first address for SNACC was Broad Street in Philadelphia, Temple University
- The names of the society: NAS ➔ SNANSC–SNACC ➔ SNACC; the Neuroanesthesia Society ➔ the Society for Neurologic Anesthesia and Supportive Care ➔ the Society of Neuroanesthesia and Critical Care ➔ the Society of Neuroscience in Anesthesiology and Critical Care
- Two Nobel laureates have spoken at SNACC meetings
- SNACC has had joint meetings with the Neuroanesthesia Society of Great Britain and Ireland, the Society of Pediatric Anesthesia, and the American Society of Critical Care Anesthesiologists
- In a dramatic episode of feigned suicide with a firearm and blood in an embezzler’s abandoned boat in the Chesapeake, SNACC very nearly went bankrupt in the mid 90’s. David S. Warner, MD was president and with his leadership team the society was salvaged from bankruptcy.
- For an organization with about 400-500 members it is a prideworthy observation to have had four of the twenty-six ASA excellence in research awardees be SNACC members recognized by the ASA, which has 46,000 members.
- Peter Safar and John D. Michenfelder, both pioneers in neuroprotection and neuroanesthesia, had legendary public fights at prominent national meetings.
- The first neuroanesthesia textbook in English was authored by Andrew Hunter of Manchester, England, in 1964
- The name “Neuroanesthesia” is credited to have first arisen in a review article with that title in 1969 by Michenfelder, Gronert, and Rehder. Michenfelder described the behind the scenes negotiation with the referees that led to this early use of the name in his Rovenstine lecture. However, Rosomoff actually first used the name in an Anesthesiology article in 1963.
- The World Federation of Neurology had a a Commission on Neuroanesthesia.
- SNACC was formally recognized as a subspecialty society by the ASA in 1976, the result of efforts by James E. Cottrell, MD.
- Today academic neuroanesthesiology, complete with ongoing research and the training of a new generation of experts, is a multinational enterprise.

This should be a memorable 40th Anniversary Celebration. Don’t miss it!
Call for Nominations to SNACC Board of Directors

The SNACC Nomination Committee is seeking nominations for open positions on the SNACC Board of Directors for 2012-13. The vacancies open for nomination are Secretary-Treasurer and one Director-at-Large. Election to the 2012-13 Board vacancies will take place at the SNACC 40th Annual Meeting on Friday, October 12, 2012 and new members will take up office at the conclusion of the Business Meeting.

The following lists the responsibilities of each vacant position.

Secretary-Treasurer (one vacancy)

The Secretary-Treasurer shall serve to oversee the finances of the Society, be responsible for maintenance of accurate records of the Executive Committee and Board of Directors meetings and assist the Vice-President for Communications in maintaining open communication with the membership. The Secretary-Treasurer will also perform such other duties as may be requested from time to time by the Board of Directors and President.

The Secretary-Treasurer will serve a one-year term but members seeking nomination to this post should be able to commit to a five year period because it is usual for the Secretary-Treasurer to progress through the other Officer positions on the Executive Committee.

Directors-at-Large of the Board of Directors (one vacancy)

Directors-at-Large promote the activities of the Society through membership of the Board of Directors and provide advice to the Executive Committee. Individuals will be required to lead on specific tasks that fall within their areas of interest. Directors-at-Large at elected for an initial three-year term and may be re-elected for a second term. Directors at Large may serve only two successive full terms.

Eligibility

Any SNACC member in good standing is eligible to self-nominate for these posts.

Nominations

Candidates need to have demonstrated a commitment to SNACC over time and preferably have already served on a SNACC Committee. Experience in the work of SNACC and the individual’s effectiveness in performing their duties are crucial to the success of their nomination.

Application is via self nomination in the form a brief statement (maximum 400 words) outlining the candidate’s experience, suitability for election to the post and what they hope to contribute to SNACC.

Nominations should be forwarded to Martin Smith MBBS, FRCA, FFICM, chair of the 2012 Nomination Committee, at martin.smith@uclh.nhs.uk by August 10, 2012 and copied to Sandra Peterson at Sandra@societyhq.com.

Closing Date is August 10, 2012

It’s Time to Share Your Stories!

As part of SNACC’s 40th Anniversary Celebration, we are looking for your SNACC Stories!

Was there a conspiracy to develop neuroanesthesiology as a subspecialty? You bet! Were there co-conspirators? Many, including names like Michenfelder, Albin, Marshall, Matjasko, Shapiro, and Harp. Did it work? So far!

This is quoted from John Hartung’s 2008 review of the good connection between SNACC and JNA and it still seems apropos to 2012. This year is the 40th Anniversary of the inception of SNACC. The society has faced challenges over the years, but has adhered to its mission and is now ready for its celebration of forty years…our Ruby anniversary.

As part of our preparations for this celebration we will be putting together a 40th Anniversary web page. It’s full of history about SNACC and you should enjoy perusing the material assembled. Knowing where we have been is essential to knowing where we are to go in the future.

In addition, this is the place to enter your “SNACC story” and read those of your colleagues. How did you get into neuroanesthesia? How or why did you join SNACC? Was anyone important in your choices? Please tell us. Your story can vary from a couple sentences to a full essay. Sol Soriano is overseeing this and you can direct any questions to him at Sulpicio.Soriano@childrens.harvard.edu.
SNACC’s Presence at the International Anesthesia Research Society Meeting

The 2012 International Anesthesia Research Society (IARS) Meeting was held May 18-21 at the Copley Marriott in Boston, MA. The Society for Neuroscience in Anesthesiology and Critical Care (SNACC) organized two sessions at this meeting. The first was a sold-out problem-based learning discussion (PBLD). A total of 10 participants discussed the anesthetic considerations for patients in whom the anesthesiologist had a concern regarding the cervical spine. The PBLD was moderated by Dr. Rafi Avitsian, Chair of the SNACC Education Committee and Section Head of Neuroanesthesiology at the Cleveland Clinic in Cleveland, OH. The diversity of participants which included a neuroanesthesiology fellowship director, anesthesiologists from Finland, Germany, and even a resident from Canada resulted in an interesting and enthusiastic discussion.

The second session was a panel pertaining to the management of patients with traumatic brain injury. Participants in the well-attended session heard from 3 experts. First, Dr. David Wright, Director of the Emergency Neurosciences Division at Emory University in Atlanta, GA, and Principal Investigator of the Progesterone for Traumatic Brain Injury III Trial (PROTECT III) addressed pre-hospital and emergency room management.

Dr. Deepak Sharma from the University of Seattle in Seattle, WA focused on his area of expertise - the issues related to intra-operative care of patients with traumatic brain injury and stressed the need for further research in this area. Finally, Dr. Martin Smith, Director of Neurocritical Care Services at the National Hospital for Neurology and Neurosurgery, University College London Hospitals and president-elect of SNACC addressed the role of multi-modal monitoring in traumatic brain injury. Following the presentations, the audience posed multiple questions for the panelists which resulted in a lively discussion. The session was moderated by Dr. Jeffrey Pasternak, Chair of the Neuroanesthesiology Division at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN and a member of the Board of Directors of SNACC.

The success of these sessions demonstrates SNACC’s continued commitment to both education and the facilitation of scientific collaboration. Further, a strong basis in both basic and clinical science is shared by both IARS and SNACC, making the IARS meeting a perfect site for SNACC to carry on its mission of advancing the art and science of the care of the neurologically-impaired patient. SNACC will also provide a session at the Neurocritical Care Meeting in Denver, CO in October addressing the relationships between the brain and both the heart and lungs. The details of the Neurocritical Care Society 2012 annual meeting, including the SNACC session, can be found on the Neurocritical Care Society web site at www.neurocriticalcare.org.
Recipients of these awards will receive:

- A plaque of recognition presented at the SNACC 40th Annual meeting on Friday, October 12, 2012 at the Omni Shoreham Hotel, Washington, DC
- Recognition on the SNACC website with a citation and picture
- Recognition in the SNACC Annual Meeting Reports published in the SNACC Newsletter and the Journal of Neurosurgical Anesthesiology.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD

The award is presented to an individual who has made outstanding contributions to the field of neuroanesthesia and neurocritical care, and for his or her distinguished service to the Society. The award will be presented at the SNACC 40th Annual Meeting in Washington, DC on October 12, 2012.

Nominations for the Distinguished Service Award should be sent by email to Martin Smith MBBS, FRCA, FFICM, chair of the 2012 Nomination Committee, C/O Sandra Peterson at the SNACC Administrative Office - sandra@societyhq.com - or to snacc@snacc.org. The closing date is August 31, 2012.

What to submit?

1. Nominator’s name, title and contact information.
2. Name, title and contact information of the nominee.
3. A minimum of two paragraphs outlining the nominee’s contributions to the field of neuroanesthesia and/or service to SNACC.
4. Brief biographical sketch or summary CV of the nominee.
5. Two letters of recommendation.

TEACHER OF THE YEAR AWARD

This award recognizes SNACC members who exemplify outstanding teaching of health care professionals and basic scientists in the areas of neuroscience, neuroanesthesiology and neurocritical care. The award will be presented at the SNACC 40th Annual Meeting in Washington, DC on October 12, 2012.

What to submit?

1. Nominator’s name, title and contact information.
2. Name, title and contact information of the nominee.
3. A supporting letter of nomination from the nominee’s current departmental chair.
4. Summary of the nominees teaching credentials:
   i) Evidence of expertise and innovation in education, invited lectureships, review course presentations at national/international meetings and participation in educational activities of national/international societies.
   ii) Summary of relevant publications of the contribution of new knowledge to the field and publication record of review articles and book chapters relevant to neuroscience, neuroanesthesiology and neurocritical care.
   iii) Administrative positions held in areas relevant to education.
   iv) Evidence of innovations in education, including the development of relevant course syllabi and/or development of methods for evaluation of effectiveness of teaching methods.
   v) Evidence of mentorship of medical students, anesthesia/critical care residents/fellows and any other relevant groups.
   vi) Evaluations supporting the nominee’s effectiveness as a teacher, quality of mentorship, impact on the development of the student’s career and impact on the productivity of the student, including evaluations from previous students.
   vii) Evaluations from chair/colleagues (past or present) regarding demonstration of a passion for teaching, verification of contributions to education, research and administration, and demonstration of respect for advisees.
   viii) Evaluations from international colleagues as above.

Note: Nominees will not be expected to have achieved excellence in all these categories.

Nominations for the Teacher of the Year Award should be sent by email to Martin Smith MBBS, FRCA, FFICM, chair of the 2012 Nomination Committee, C/O Sandra Peterson at the SNACC Administrative Office - sandra@societyhq.com - or to snacc@snacc.org. The closing date is August 31, 2012.
